Manager commentary

- » In December, portfolio activity was elevated as interesting opportunities as well as new risks presented themselves.
- » Firstly, we were of the view that markets were underestimating the stickiness of inflation and both inflation expectations and bond yields were going to move higher in the coming weeks. So, within government bonds, we shifted some exposure from long duration bonds to the central part of the yield curve, lowering the average maturity of our bond allocation and being less exposed to the risk of rising bond yields, whilst also increasing allocation to inflation-linked bonds (US TIPS).
- » Still within fixed income, we took from investment grade bonds and reallocated to convertible bonds, a view that both us and our AI-driven allocation tool agreed on. Convertibles are an asset class we have been tactical about for a few years (last held during and after the COVID pandemic), and now they offer good diversification benefits thanks to their convexity (downside protection of a corporate bonds, upside potential of a stock), which comes useful in periods of volatile markets like today.
- » Within equities, we moved a small allocation away from emerging markets in favour of European and US equities, as advised by our AI-driven asset allocation tool, as that would bring additional stability to the portfolio during potentially turbulent times.
- » The net result, was a reduction in cash, which we had been holding onto in the previous months whilst waiting for the right opportunity to spend it.
