■ Manager commentary

In April 2026, the Momentum GF Global Equity Fund gained 9.0% in US dollar terms, underperforming the MSCI World Index, which gained 9.6% over the month.

The market delivered strong returns as perceived risk related to the Iran conflict receded. Both sides entered negotiations and agreed to a ceasefire. The primary driver of performance was the semiconductor sector, which gained over 29%. Nvidia lagged its peers, rising a relatively modest 14% compared with Broadcom (+35%), Advanced Micro Devices (+74%), and Micron Technology (+53%). The Fund has exposure to each of these companies, although at lower weights than the elevated index levels.

Within Communication Services, exposure to entertainment stocks proved a key headwind, with Nintendo notably weak over the period as component costs continue to hurt margins. This was only partially offset by strong contributions from digital advertising and platform businesses, including Alphabet.

The Fund maintains a balanced exposure across styles and regions, with a continued focus on fundamentals and valuation discipline. Given the ongoing concentration of risk within the index, we view the Fund's diversification as an important tool to protect capital during a period of heightened speculation.
