■ Manager commentary

In January 2025, the Momentum GF Global Equity Fund gained 4.2% in US dollar terms, outperforming the MSCI World Index, which gained 3.5%.

The key market event this month was the release of the Chinese AI tool DeepSeek. Notably, its performance levels matched those of established players, it was released for free, and it was reportedly built at a cost of just $5 million. This raises important questions about the potential return on the vast sums still being invested in AI model development.

As a result, UK and European markets outperformed the US, value stocks outperformed growth, and small- and mid-caps outperformed large-caps. The biggest driver of outperformance for the fund was stock selection in the technology sector, with an underweight position in the "Magnificent Seven" being a key factor.

The IT hardware industry was the portfolio's biggest detractor, but the fund benefited from both an underweight position and strong stock selection in this sector.

Conversely, the fund performed well in IT software, with RELX posting gains due to strong demand for its data analytics services.

The portfolio also benefited from increased consumer spending across several sectors. Experian PLC (+16%) gained from higher spending on international travel. Hermès International (+18%) rallied on strong results and positive forecasts for the luxury goods market and MercadoLibre (+13%) rose on expectations of higher sales in Mexico.
