■ Manager commentary

In July 2025, the Momentum GF Global Equity Fund fell 0.3% in US dollar terms, underperforming the MSCI World Index, which rose by 1.3%.

Investor sentiment remained buoyant amid resilient economic data and continued enthusiasm around AI-driven innovation. Large cap growth stocks led the charge, with the MSCI World Large Growth Index advancing 2.3%, underscoring the market's preference for companies with strong earnings momentum and exposure to transformative technologies.

The Information Technology sector stood out as the top performer, benefiting from robust demand for semiconductors, cloud infrastructure, and AI-related services. Within this space, the Magnificent Seven stocks continued to dominate headlines and portfolios. NVIDIA was a particular standout, surging 12.6% over the month as investors responded positively to strong earnings and growing optimism around its leadership in AI hardware.

The underperformance versus the index was largely down to stock selection in the IT sector particularly around the underexposure to the magnificent seven and software stocks. Also, over the previous year media stocks had been a major positive contributor to performance with stocks such as Netflix (+98%), Spotify (+144%) and Nintendo (+83%). That positive momentum reversed in July with Netflix (-13%), Spotify (-18%) and Nintendo (-12%).
