■ Manager commentary

In May 2025, the Momentum GF Global Equity Fund gained 5.0% in US dollar terms, underperforming the MSCI World Index, which rose by 5.9%.

US markets finally saw some relief from the Trump-induced sell-off, with the S&P 500 rallying 6.2%, outperforming Asia (+5.0%), Europe (+4.6%), and Emerging Markets (+4.3%). From a style perspective, large-cap growth was dominant, gaining 8.8% and significantly outperforming large-cap value, which rose 2.8%. This was largely driven by the Information Technology sector, which gained 10.5%. After falling 19% during the first four months of 2025, semiconductor stocks staged a strong rebound, rising 19.4% in May, led by Nvidia (+24.1%) and Broadcom (+25.8%). The Portfolio's underweight position in semiconductor stocks was the primary contributor to the underperformance.

At the stock level, the portfolio was underweight Eli Lilly, which declined 18% during the month and is a top-20 constituent of the index. Shares fell after CVS Health removed Eli Lilly's weight-loss drug, Zepbound, from its preferred list, making rival drug Wegovy more widely accessible.

Conversely, the portfolio benefited from an overweight position in NRG Energy. The company reported strong Q1 earnings with upbeat guidance and announced a significant $12 billion acquisition that will double its generation capacity. Following these announcements, several analysts raised their price targets and ratings on the stock, which rose 43% over the month.
