■ Manager commentary

In November 2024, the Momentum GF Global Equity Fund gained 4.3% in US dollar terms, slightly underperforming the MSCI World index, which rose by 4.6%.

Optimism around US companies increased following Donald Trump's success in the US elections. His business-friendly policies have fuelled expectations of lower taxes and reduced regulation. As a result, markets reverted to the long-term momentum trade, with the US market outperforming other regions, growth stocks leading other style factors, and the "Magnificent Seven" mega-cap stocks exceeding the index's return.

While the outperformance of giant-cap growth stocks garnered attention, it was small- and mid-cap growth indices that delivered the strongest performance. US small- and mid-cap growth stocks posted returns exceeding 11%, driving much of the market's gains.

The consumer discretionary sector led the charge with a 9.4% gain. Within this sector, Tesla (+38%) and Amazon (+11.5%) were the top contributors. The portfolio's underweight exposure to both stocks provided some benefit but resulted in underperformance relative to the index. On the other hand, the portfolio's allocation to Granahan US Focused Growth, which is well-positioned in US small-cap growth stocks, was a standout performer, returning an impressive 18.2% for the month.
